Homelessness Report Card

More than 2,300 people in New Brunswick were homeless and stayed in a shelter at some point in 2008. That's one of the findings in New Brunswick's first Homelessness Report Card. The report presents a profile of homelessness in the province and introduces many organizations that work to reduce the impact of homelessness. The Greater Saint John Homelessness Steering Committee also released Saint John's first homelessness report card, Experiencing Homelessness, and it found that in 2008 more than 1,100 people stayed in a shelter. Future progress or lack of progress will be measured and reported on an annual basis using this report card template.

The first Homelessness Report Card for New Brunswick was a collaborative effort of the Community Homelessness Network Inc. (Bathurst), the Fredericton Community Action Group on Homelessness, the Greater Moncton Homelessness Steering Committee, and the Greater Saint John Homelessness Steering Committee. It presents a profile of homelessness in the province and the four designated communities under the Federal Homelessness Partnering Strategy (Bathurst, Fredericton, Moncton, and Saint John).

The committees hope that these report cards will raise awareness and bring attention to the issue of homelessness in the province. The report cards are based on a template developed by the Ottawa Alliance to End Homelessness. The Saint John report card was the final in a series of report cards released by other communities in the province this year. Work is already underway in Moncton to release their second report card this month.

TRANSITION HOME SURVEY

Results from the Transition Home Survey, completed by Statistics Canada for 2007/2008 are now available. For more information, click here.

FINDING HOME - POLICY OPTIONS FOR ADDRESSING HOMELESSNESS

Finding Home is a new (free) e-book on homelessness in Canada with 29 chapters (so far) on justice, Aboriginal people, immigrants and refugees, women, children and youth, health, and - of course - housing.

A section on housing rights is being planned. The e-book includes summaries of recently completed research reports as well as the best and most policy-relevant published articles from scholarly journals. The e-book is organized into themes that represent specific groups of homeless people and issues that intersect with homelessness, along with a section on research issues. The book is designed to grow over time as new chapters are added.

HOMELESS HUB - PHASE II

Phase II of the Homeless Hub was completed in June. Visit the site at www.homelesshub.ca. They have a new look, they have added to their library which now contains over 25,000 homelessness resources; they've enhanced their Topics and Subtopics section; they've added an Education section with curriculum units and resources for teachers and students; and they've added networking tools that allow you to create a personal profile; connect to your own research; add resources to your favourites; "talk back" to and rate the resources.

ENDING CHRONIC HOMELESSNESS IN OTTAWA

Destination: Home was released in May 2009 and identifies a vision and plan for ending chronic homelessness in Ottawa. The outline three core strategies: housing first, support services, and engagement.

HELP BUILD A HOUSING AND HOMELESSNESS MAP OF CANADA!

Canada urgently needs a national housing plan – millions of Canadians are calling for one, and the United Nations has added its voice. The best national housing plan is built from the community up – a plan that identifies local housing and homelessness needs across the country, and pinpoints effective local housing and homeless initiatives that deserve support. Building from the community up allows us to identify the resources needed to support a comprehensive national housing plan – including funding, legislation, programs and services.

You can help build a national housing and homelessness plan from the community up by helping to build a national housing and homelessness map of Canada. The Wellesley Institute has launched this work and you can find the map here.

Tell us about an advocacy group that is campaigning to end homelessness and/or work for better homes; or about a housing or homelessness project, or a program or service, that is making a difference in your community. There's no limit on the number of entries – the map will grow as we hear more from you. The more information that you can supply, the better, including web links.

Join the campaign to build a national housing plan from the community up by adding your housing and homelessness info to the national map!

CALL FOR PROPOSALS - HOMELESSNESS KNOWLEDGE DEVELOPMENT

The Homelessness Partnering Secretariat is inviting applicants to submit proposals for projects that will identify good practices with respect to homelessness in Canada and that will improve data development and address data gaps with respect to homelessness in Canada.

For more information on the call for proposals, click here. Application deadline is October 15, 2009.

On Saturday, September 26th, First Steps Housing Project Inc. will be hosting the inaugural Front Steps for First Steps - the Big Night In Fundraiser 2009. They are asking community members to host fun home parties instead of going out to an event. Choose a theme, invite the guests and have them make a donation to First Steps. As a host you will receive invitations, donation cards, tracking sheets, party hosting tips, and the chance to win some incredible prizes.

First Steps provides a safe home for young mothers and their children where life skills can be taught and where self-esteem and confidence can be nurtured. Since opening, First Steps has provided the resources needed to escape homelessness, poverty and abuse and offered access to healthy living, positive parenting and education to over 200 young women and their children.

For more information on the event and to find out how you can get involved call Sharon Amirault or Pam Peiser at (506) 693-2228.

THIS IS SERITHA'S STORY...

Life before First Steps was completely out of control, with no guidance, no structure and no home. I am Seritha and I am an addict. I have been since I was 14. My life was unmanageable. I wanted to forget and not feel and I was lost. My childhood was filled with abuse. Stability was unheard of. As I got older things got worse and I began to long for a sense of belonging. So I turned to drugs. It was sadly so easy to fit in that world. I lost who I was and nothing mattered but the drugs. Lesson after lesson, struggle after struggle, I got addicted to crack cocaine (the devil I now call it). Life was over. Then I got pregnant with my son. I knew this was a wake up call. I was afraid and did not know where to go or what to do. I ended up at First Steps. Now I know what stability is... it was the longest I have ever lived anywhere. Thank God for the Apartment Program or I would still be living there! They taught me routine and healthy lifestyle things... things that were unheard of before. I got off the crack and learned to parent by watching others. I think some people learned from me too. It is great that way, learning from each other. When I was clean I felt like part of a family, a big sister. I would be the welcoming committee for new girls scared to death. I had a sense of belonging. I will tell you, life wasn't easy as I tried to stay clean to protect my unborn baby. Now I am in the Apartment Program with my amazing son. Being a mother is the most important thing to me. One thing that makes me really happy is waking up to him touching my face and saying "mommy". I know he will not grow up like I did. I know because I will be there every step of the way to protect and guide him as the First Steps staff and residents taught me. I still call staff pretending I need a question answered, but really I want to talk or to share my successes. I have made great bonds with staff and residents and even though we all move on, First Steps will always be a part of my life and my healthy son's life. I have not used crack cocaine in almost 2 years. I know that I will always be an addict, but am sure I will never use again. Life is too good! Thank you for giving me a second chance at life

THE FROM HOMELESS TO HOME PROJECT

This project created five ways to learn from people who have been homeless in Ottawa and bring to life for a broad audience the findings from the Panel Study on Homelessness in Ottawa.

With funding from the Social Sciences and Humanities Research Council of Canada through its Homelessness and Diversity Issues initiative, the project sets out to share with the broader community answers to these questions – Who is homeless in Ottawa? How do people move into and out of homelessness? What challenges do they face? How do people become homeless can community organizations, governments and people in the community work together to end homelessness?

Outflow Ministry

The purpose of Outflow (as it is known on the street) is to feed and help the homeless, low income, and marginalized in the City of Saint John. They started in October 2008 by serving a hot meal every Sunday night in the Kent Theatre on Coburg Street. There is also a worship gathering after the meal for those who are interested (this is not mandatory). On average they serve 200 people every week and are able to do so entirely by donations and volunteers.

Thursday evenings are spent up-town doing anything from free BBQs in King's Square, buying groceries or a meal, handing out hot chocolate and blankets, finding housing, paying rent, helping with renovations, and filling any other need they are able to meet.

They have recently rented a storefront on Waterloo Street and are renovating to get ready to open as a drop-in centre where they will provide food and necessities, someone to talk with, internet and computer access, resume help, as well as a safe, relaxing environment for anyone to come to. Their goal is to be in operation 7 days a week!
